TEMPERANCE.

The Mass Meeting at Lincoln Hall. Although snowy weather is usually regarded as the best assurance against a good audience, it seemed to exert but little power over the temper-ance folks Sunday afternoon. The meeting ance folks Sunday afternoon. The meeting brought out the very "influence" which the ladies desired to touch and enlist, and among the audience might have been seen some of our best citizens. We noticed Gen. Birney, our District attorney, Mr. F. M. Stadiey and others.

The stage was occupied by a large number of ladies identified with the movement, such as Mrs. Sedmore, Mrs. Church, Miss Kee, &c. At the organ; Mrs. W. H. Pope presided, and with the Misses Stokes, Messrs. Parsona Calvert and Or hman made up the choir, which furnished excellent music.

from the Scriptures by Mrs. Linville and prayed by the Rev. J. Hervey Appleton, D. D., followed by cheerful sacred music which seemed to snilven the meeting.

Mrs. Mary E. Johnson, president Temperance und of Christian Women of Brooklyn, was first introduced. She is a lady of fine appearance and dignified beariog, has an excellent voice and delivery. She deserves particular credit for her continued and effectual labors, coming as she does disinterestedly, spending time and money, and yet never having leit the evils she seeks to subvert. She spoke as follows:

It was not wholly the sagacity of the Peruvian general that conquered the city of Habylon. Twas not so much his sagacity as it was ewing to the feast and revery. The drunken scone was not among those of the lower rank of society; the lords of the land were there—those in efficial authority, those who handled the immediate interests of the kingdom. Belchausz, the king, made a great feast to a thousand of his lords, and drank wine before them. The golden vessels were brought from the temple. One feature of this sin of intemperance is that it always leads into one of a deeper nature. His princes, his wives, kept him company in drinking from the sacred vessels. The same sin in our land has brought our nation into peril. Our God has let the evil go on until the nation has felt the need of him to deliver it. No human power could break the chain. And when a heart-ronding wall came from palace and hovel then God answered, "I have seen the affiction of my people; I have heard their greaning, and am come down to deliver them." "And now come," says he to the women of our country, "I will send thee fato legious history tell us many instances where woman was called into action for the saving of the people. It was not only Moses and Aaron, but Miriam assisted in the leadership of a people 600,000 strung. "If thou wit go with me then I will not go." said Harak; "but if thou will not go with me then I will not go." I srael was seared and the opposing forces were overcome.

Queen Esther demonstrated the power of women's prayer and deliverance came to her nation. For three days and nights she and her maldens parted and petitioned the God of nations, and he heard and answered.

And so I might go en in history. But what have we to do with to-day? An enemy, marshaled by powers of darkness, shadowing homes and blighting almost every household, is stealthily coming upon us. The Church of Christ has been asleep. "While mon slept" he has come in and brought with him poverty, suffering, pillage, crime.

"While mon slept" he has come in and brought with him poverty, suffering, pillage, crime. Salsons and places under every name are its larking places-restaurants, eyster houses, club houses, billiard halls, and under the respectable names of druggist and grocer. From the last named channel it is reaching into families of every grade of zoelety, and a nation of children are being trained into an appetite that will make them drunkards. The infant is receiving it as an inheritance not only from the father but the mother. O, women of God, arise! We bear a respensibility in this matter. Faith looks np and so do our hearts. so do our hearts. We know God will put an end to these evils, and He will do it through us if we will only let Him.

Airs, Underhill made a very impressive appeal for the cause, setting forth the necessity of money to carry on the work, when a ready response was given in small contributions from almost every one present amid singing.

Airs, Wittenmyer, president of the United Women's Temperance Union, was then introduced, and was recognized by the audience, who had heard her admirable address last Sunday or read it in This kerushican. She said that she had great faith in the women's movement, because she had great faith in the women's movement, because she had great faith in women and is God. Some had asserved that no child lives who will see the end of intemperance. They have not had the vision. They told her father the same of slavery, but he lived to see it overthrown. All Christians were to clasp hands and forget denominations. They had God and truth on their side, but they wanted the men. There must be united effort. It was their business to make good laws, and not say that the liquor traffic shall be lawless. She suggested that, while the laws were being changed, now would be a good time to incorporate something upon that traffic into them, and she referred facetiously, but delicately, to the uncertainty of the District government, convulsing the house in laughter. Intemperance took three to five hundred thousand from the producing powers of this country annually; intelegative theaties of the divorce cases came from the same causes; we were supporting one half the paupers on account of it, and three fourths of all the cases that go to the police station grow out of it; and nine tenths of all the persons the United Women's Temporof it, and three fourths of all the cases that go to the police station grow out of it; and nine tenths of all the persons the United Women's Temporance Union assist were from this. Then she suggested that patronsge be given to establishments where liquor formed no part of the stock in trade, and she spoke of terms with grocers, and referred obscurely to political transactions, which kept the house applauding until they were requested to desist. She then said they meant to have a more thorough organization than the ablest politician could effect, and predicted the time when intemperance would not enter the Capitol.

Such arrangements had been made by other conventions, and he thought it not improbable that the companies would be quite as generous with the old soldiers visiting the capital for a patriotic and humanitarian purpose. At least no efforts would be spared by the committee to that ond.

AN EDUCATIONAL ERROR. Text-Books and Lecture Recitations. Under the above title the New York Tribung recently gave utterance to some thoughts so en-tirely in accordance with those which have been frequently fulminated through these columns, that we cannot resist the temptation to reproduce them in the hope that they will attract the attention of our own educators. The Tribune says:

"Through the American system of education, from the college to the district school, there runs a grave fault. It has too much rote and routice, It wants vitaity, freshness, independence. The young man throws away forever his Homer and his Virgil with no comprehension of the heroic zirain, nor of the first rich growths of art, invention and intellectual expression. The average boy in the average expensive private school receives this Latin declensions and numbles his United States history with no intimate knowledge of his work, and not much interest in it beyond the momentary excitement of rectime literally and geiting it over. College authorities have borne testiment to the preparatory schools. tion of our own educators. The Tribune says:

"The average girl in the average expensive private school takes her French and her music, and her this and that of serious learning, and emerges coated with accomplishments and information, and utterly incapable of making her education available if hand necessity should by chance knock at the coor. There is the average public school. Pupils rise at tap of bell, pupils march at tap of bell, fold their arms at tap of bell, and recite as mechanically the exact words of the book. There is constant toll and trouble abent text-books, as if memory were the enly possession to be cultivated, and the text-book the only great agent of education. It is, in truth, the refuge of the lary and the incapable, while to the thorough and enthustastic teacher it is only a help and a reference. When it is used as a collection of printed sentences to be repeated to the letter, it is lifeless. It is as a treasury of facts, dates, figures and rules around which the teacher may group flustration and arrument that it becomes of vivid value. We need more listening and its stalking on the part of the pupil, and less listening and more talking on the part of the instructor. It is time that the parrot system should end, "It is a nlessure to record here a mathed our. "The average girl in the average expensive

"It is a pleasure to record here a method pursued in one of our colleges under an original and accomplished head. This method can probably have no more descriptive name than the editorial; for the recitations are conducted with wide and intelligent comments and comparisons from the teacher. He shows his students in the simplest manner possible the progresses of thought. from the teacher. He shows his students in the simplest manner possible the progress of thought and schlevement in those branches of human knowledge which they are studying. He brings down the dry bones of an older time, and bids them move and talk with the clothed-on figures of this. For instance, a professor of history in this college is a master of the art of modern warof this. For instance, a processor of instory in this college is a master of the art of modern warfare in theory and in actual practice, and in teaching the ancient modes, maneuvers and instruments of conflict he skillfully compares them with the modern, and makes both old and new alive and attractive. Instruction like this is worthy to be called thorough, for it gives the juice of men's thought and work. It is such instruction through all the branches that we anticipate in the school of the future. We look to see the teacher grow more and more into the lecturer, awaking and interesting the duil minds among his pupils, and delighting and rapidly developing the bright ones. Such instruction only men and women especially fitted by nature and study for their work can give; and it is not improbable that the revolution which would substitute this method for that now in use would solve more than one of the troublesome problems solve more than one of the troublesome problems of our national education. I will, as soon as soon as practicable, arrange for your relief.

I will, as soon as soon as practicable, arrange for your relief.

In severing our official relations, which you have done voluntarily for the purpose of devoting your entire attention to private practice, allow me to thank you for the able, faithful and satisfactory manner in which you have presecuted the duties of your position as my assistant, and to express the sincere desire that your success in the future prosecution of your profession may be commensurate with your eminent ability as a lawyer, your honorable bearing as a gentieman, and your loyalty as a friend. I could wish you no better fortune in life, and I hope and believe you will realize all that.

no better fortune in this, you will realize all that, Ever truly your friend, GEO. P. FIGUER. Saturday Afternoon at Kendall Green.

To the Editor of the National Republican: Sin: Weary with the labors of the week, and tired of the noise and distractions of the city, I turned my footsteps toward Kendall Green, think-ing that a visit to the "silent college" would be most refreshing to one tired of the din of human voices. Not to make my walk too long, I took the New 10rk-avenue cars to Seventh street northeast. I was told that a brick sidewalk had northeast. I was told that a brick sidewalk had been laid to the gate of the college. If so a part of it is runk so far beneath the mud as to alude the keenest eyesight. Mud, however, to one who has lived in Washington more than two years is no great obstacle, so I persevered and reached the gate in safety. Just here I was startled by the striking of a clock, and looking up to the beautiful stone chapel saw the faces of a new time-piece filling the round holes that formerly gave such an unfinished look to the tower. Passing to the left of the chapel, I took a look at the length and breadth of the cellar, already finished and awaiting the erection of the main college building, when Congress shall make the suitable appropriation.

One of the silent boys (think of it, my boy-tormested friends,) now appearing, I made known One of the silent boys (think of it, my boy-tormented friends,) now appearing, I made known to him my desire to enter the chapel, and he most politely opened the doors and bowed me in. I took a seat in one of the chairs, and tried to imagine the president or one of the professors gesticulating a sermon, but ny mind, not given to sermonising, failed in the attempt, and I left the beautiful audience-room, and took a peep into the students' dining hall. This is a large, handsome room to the left of the chapel, and in the same building.

I think it would be students' dining hall. This is a large, handsome room to the left of the chapel, and in the same building.

I think it would be worth a trip to Kendall Green to see a lot of college boys eating in silence. From the dining hall I passed out to the front of the chapel, where I stopped to take in one of the finant view of the Capitol and city that I have ever seen from any point. I then passed around the institution building, which is on the right of the chapel, not daring to enter, for fear my slight knowledge of the language would not prove sufficient in conversation should I happen to meet either teacher or pupil.

Retracting my siesp past the front of the chapel, a walk through the grounds of about two hundred yards brought us to the houses of the college faculty. Two only are finished and occupied, those of President Gallaudet and Projensor Chickering. I passed these, to examine two more new building. Here were workmen at their various occupations, but it seemed almost that they made less noise here than elsewhere. I thought surely here is an escape from the cares and vexations of city life. Just then I heard the noise of carriage wheels, and, looking round, I saw one after another driving through the gate, until the couviction was forced upon me that I had come to Kendall Green on a "reception day," and the city was following me.

As I saw the ladies alighting from the carriages I hade farewell to silence, but did not wonder that such ladies as the wives of Senators Morrill, Edmunds, Boutwell, Freitinghuysen, Sherman, Mitchell, and others when I do not know, should desire to visit this charming place.

Real Estate Loans the Best.

In seasons of depression in financial affairs time has demonstrated the fact that real estate security is more reliable than that of any other character. Stocks often fall to pay dividends, or character. Stocks often that to pay dividends, or they may depreciate to utter worthlessness. How often during the past few months have railroads and other corporations neglected to provide for their interest? A real estate loan is under your own control, and if the principal and interest are not paid security may be reserted to without de-lay. B. H. Warner makes a specialty of this branch of investments, proposed street railroad, from the river front, via Tweifth street, to Mount Pleasant and the Soldiers' Home, is in danger of defeat because "two gentlemen on Tweifth street protest to the Senate Committee on the District that the street is too narrow for double track or turn-outs, &c." Your correspondent is informed that his suggestions would be of value had not the "friends" of the project already guarded against the objections of the Tweifth-airced remonstrants by embracing the plan that he suggested in the original draft of their bill, which passed the House without opposition, providing for a single track on Eleventh and Tweifth street, "between the canal and Boundary." The placing of turn-outs or switches upon any portion of the route on Tweifth street has never been contemplated by the corporators, who, to secure the property-owners against any contingency that might possibly arise in the future, have been inhibited, by a provision inserted by the Senate committee, from placing obstructions of this character upon said street.

Your correspondent is doubtless mistaken in attributing danger to the charter from "two gentlemen on Tweifth street." The opposition comes from existing monopolies, which, having for years declined to extend their roads to Mount Picasant, now, like the dog in the manger, would prevent, if possible, the citizens themselves from building the road.

The road is not merely a public improvement and a public convenience, it is now a great public necessity, daily rendered more imperative by the rapidly increasing wants of the flourishing community most directly interested in its construction. The people of our northern suburbs have determined to provide themselves from building the road.

MONTEVALLO, ALA., Jan. 20, 1875.
At a meeting of the citizens of Montevallo,

At a meeting of the citizens of hiontevallo, held this day, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

Whereas it was the will of an all-wise and inscrutable Providence to visit our place, on the 22d of November last, with a terrible tornado, leveling buildings, both publis and private, to the ground, and leaving in its pathway devastation and death; and whereas, under the great exigency of the situation, we were driven to call upon the noble and generous people of the city of Washington for assistance; and whereas the people of that city responded to our call, both individually and collectively, in a most Christian and liberal manner; therefore, be it Resolved, That we, in the name of the people of Montevallo, return our sincere and grateful thanks to the citizens of Washington for their liberal donations, made through our committee, Messrs. Reynolds and O'Brien.

Revolved, That Messrs. Charles Hays, Colonel W. Betts, Judge C. Pelham and — Cochran have our special gratitude and thanks for the active part taken by them in our behalf, and for the valuable services rendered our committee while in their city.

Resolved, That a copy of this preamble and held this day, the following preamble and resothe valuable services rendered our commission while in their city.

Recolved, That a copy of this preamble and these resolutions be forwarded to The Washington National Refuellican for publication.

Smooth Pavements. To the Editor of the National Republican: Siz: Artificial stone may be a valuable discov-ery in many respects, but unless in some way roughened the Board of Health should provent its use for sidewalks, in order to avoid braises and broken limbs, to which even except, active, and able-bodied persons are liable, on account of its extreme amouthness, and much more those whom misfortune or patriotism has crippled.

A one-legged man this morning fell twice on the "artificial stone" pavement in front of the Quartermaster General's office, and to such persons accidents of this kind might even result fatally. Some saile persons have the faculty of falling "right side up," but it is believed they do not constitute the majority of the community, and even if they did minorities have some rights which even the artificial stone company or companies should be compelled to respect.

Corrugate! Corrugate!! Corrugate!! its use for sidewalks, in order to avoid brui

Tickets and Greenbacks. A ticket in the last library concert is just as good as a greenback of the same size. Its value is fixed and it can be used like currency. Many people prefer a ticket to its money value: because it may come to be worth a thousand or more times its price. Besides, a ticket admits the holder to the great fellimore; publice, which admittance alone is worth the price of a coupon.

Catarrh. A. Laiting Pend's Extract is nearly a specific for this dis-ease. It can handly be excelled, even in cid and obstinate cases. The relief is so prompt that no one who has ever tried it will be without it.

AMUSEMENTS.

Mr. Saville's Benefit. To-night Mr. J. G. Saville has his benefit. It bound to be a bumper; but that is not enough. it should take on the form of a grand testimonial to a worthy gentleman, who, in doing his best to amuse and satisfy the theatre-goers of this city, has consumed his fortune, even to the last dollar. The theatrical attractions provided for this benefit are of the highest class. For the first time in many years "London Assurance" will be per-it are of the highest class. For the first time in many years "London Assurance" will be performed, and by a east which can hardly be equaled on the continent. We want to see a great house, and we want thousands of tickets bought by persons, whether they can go to the theatre or not.

The Fitth-avenue company will be here to-day, and this evening a magnificent performance may be expected from them.

The following correspondence indicates increased attractions and is a proof of the estimation in which Mr. Saville is held by the profession. Mr. Chas. Pope offered to play for him: Col. Mulberry Sellers offered his services, and every one reems ready to do all they can to make a splendid fellow's heart glad:

MR. FORD'S TRUBGRAM. J. G. Saville, Washington, D. C.; Certainly, with pleasure, Anything to make your meritorious benefit a grand success. JEO. T. FORD.

Ford's Opera House-Sheridan & Mack. A fine audience assembled last night to witness the performance of Sheridan, Mack & Day's company, and were richly rewarded. Sheridan and Mack, in their sketch of "Who's dat knocking at de gate?". are excessively funny, and proved themselves artists of ability. Their changes and ransformations are very quick-so much so that the audience at times was at a loss to identify them. Miss Alicia Jourdan is a pleasing vocalist and decidedly handsome. She rendered her various songs excellently well. Lester and Allen, in their songs and dances, were well received and deservedly encored. The Stuartisters, two beautiful blondes, gave their selections in an easy and graceful manner, and their deuble clog medley fairly brought down the house. One of the most pleasing performances of the evening was little Carrie Boshell's song, "The Drunkard's Child." The entertainment ecceluded with a pantomimic sketch, entitled "The Statue Blanche," in which Grimaid Adams displayed his abilities as a clown to the entire satisfaction of the audience. This company in its entirety is a most excellent one. Each and all are first-class in their respective roles, and afford an evening of amusement highly relished.

Prominent among the company were Miss Belle Dickson, who looked a belle; Mr. and Mrz. Torrens, Mr. Repett and sister, Misses Suilivan and Katle Cogan, Mr. Evans, Mrs. Hight, Mr. Castile, wife and sister, Mrs. Shea, Mr. Murphy, Mr. Cahill, Mr. O'Meara and Mr. Toole.

The young ladies suread a most sumptnons supper, and the sparkling wine was excluded. The guasic and dancing were the result of the highest development of science and art, and the affair was a grand success.

Mary E. Le Feyre To morrow evening Mrs. Mary E. LeFevre delivers her lecture on "Love and Marriage" at Odd Fellows' hall. Mrs. LeFevre has convictions. The motto beneath her photographs is this, and we think from Tennyson:

we think from Tennyson:

"And because right is right, to follow right
Were wisdom in the seorn of consequence."
Mrs. LeFevre is an English woman, with a physical English training. She thinks nothing of a walk of ten miles before broakfast. She rides a "milk-white," "nery, untamed steed."
She rows the fastest scall on the Harlem, and is the best female pistol shot in America. It is barely possible a woman like her has some sensible ideas about leve.

Mrs. Frances M. Carter. The many friends of this estimable lady will be pleased to learn that she has consented to give another entertainment in our city on her return from Florida. It will take place on Thursday evening, February 18, at which time she will be assisted by the favorites, Mrs. J. Remington Fair-lamb, Mr. Lenox Simpson, and Professor J. W. Bischoff, the famous blind organist and planist. Edward Eggleston.

The Congregational church course has been so far a success, and every one has been pleased, the entertainments all being of the highest order of talent. The seventh in the regular order is on Wednesday evening, being a lecture by Edward Eggleston, entitled "The Paradise of Childhood." This gentleman is a lecture of the highest order, and has sustained for himself the notoriety his "Hoosier Schoolmaster" and "Circuit Rider" gained for him. All should hear him. The Avenue Theatre. Mr. George Bauer has, at great expense, remodeled, repainted, refurnished and redecorated the old Metropolitan Varieties, and has christened it, appropriately enough, "The Avenue Theatre." He will keep before the public a first-class wariety stage, and will give it a proper financial support. The place has undergone a complete metamor-phosis, and is new in every respect, worthy of a cerdial support from the gentlemen of the city. George B. Porteous.

This evening Dr. Porteous, of England, will deliver his great lecture on the "Attitude of the Clergy Toward Public Amusements," It will be a splendid and most eloquent effort.

On motion, Lieutenant Eckioff was called to the chair.

Sergeant Gorman and Privates W. W. Grant and James Pitapatrick were appointed a committee to draft resolutions expressive of the sense of the meeting.

During the committee's absence Lieutenant Eckloff addressed those assembled, speaking in the highest terms of the deceased officer, and stated that he was appointed on the force August 25, 1871. He then spoke of his merits as a man, his promptness to duty and the faithful performance of the same. He was followed by several other officers. The committee returned and reported the following, which were adopted:

Resolved, That we have heard with deep sorrow of the death of our late comrade, Private Thomas O'Connor, who for more than four year has been connected with this force, and who has endeared himself to us by his uniform courtesy and kindness.

terday morning in arresting a colored man named Heary Talliafere, alias Johnson, aged forty-five years, residing at No. 476 Virginia avenue, and better known as "the Fox," on the charge of stealing the overcoats of Messrs J. D. Barciay and Jerry Whitehand, an account of which was published in yesterday's Republican. The officers found on his person five coupons from $50 United States bonds, and one from a $100 bond, which are also supposed to have been stolen. After taking the accused into custody, a search warrant was procured and his house locked over, when there was found a number of coats, pants, overcoats, shawle, blankets and many other articles.

Talliafero is an old thief, and has been lottering ground the corridors of the Capitol and hotels the entire winter. Some of the property secovered has already been recognized, and it is fair to presume the remainder will be to-day or to morrow.

Art Sale. Art Sais.

The sale of oil paintings from the Philadelph's Art Gallery, at 1118 Pennsylvania avenus, was largely attended last evening. There were some largery attended last evening. There were some very fine paintings sold at remarkably low fig-ares. If we judge by the prices paid, art taste is not progressing in our city as rapidly as we could wish, and as for the artists themselves, they cer-tainly deserve sympathy. These who wish to decorate their houses at a small cost will attend the sale this evening.

Journalistic. Mr. D. D. Domer, well known in this city, has Mr. D. D. Doner, well known in this city, as become the editor of the Shamokin (Pa.) Times. The journal is promising, and with the energy of Mr. Domer it will eventually become a prominent paper in that county. Rev. S. Domer, paster of the English Lutheran church, of Washington, is a regular correspondent of the paper.

As the officer approached the place of his concealment he fied again to Canada, and registered at a hotel in Montreal under an assumed name. Thence he went to Compton, 115 miles from Montreal. His place of concealment became known, and the officer succeeded in placing a copy of the summons in his hands. Mr. DAWES replied that he was here during the helidays. The committee had the pleasure of his company in New York, and King then ex-pressed a willingness to appear before the com-mittee. The committee did not summon him then, because they did not know HOW BADLY HE WAS WANTED. Mr. BUTLER, of Mass., inquired how a man could be in contempt of the House who had not been legally summoned, and the summons in Can-been legally summanded, and was not legal?

Mr. RANDALL said, if he recollected aright, during the impeachment trial men were subponned in Canada.

Mr. BUTLER said none were subponned, but gentlemen were requested to come and they out gentlemen were requested to vote a set to came.

Mr. RANDALL thought it would be best to issue the order of arrest, so that if King came into the United States he could be taken.

Mr. BUTLER said the arrest would be illegal, as King had not been summoned.

Mr. KASSON said that all the committee wanted settled was whether a deliberate and well-known attempt to avoid the summons of the House constituted a contempt. constituted a contempt.

After further discussion Mr. DAWES withdrew the resolution, and said he would offer a bill in relation to the selection of

GRAND AND PETIT JURIES IN THE DISTRICT OF GRAND AND FETIT JURISS IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

It had a direct bearing on the case that had just been discussed. There was no authority now to summon juries here, and unless the cases against King were acted upon by the grand jury this month they would be barred by the statute of limitations. The bill passed.

[It provides for the appointment of commissioners, who are to select six hundred names and place them in a box. CITY ITEMS.

A STARTLING TRUTH.—Thousands die annually from neglected coughs and colds, which soon ripen into consumption, or other equally fatal diseases of the lungs, when by the timely use of a single bottle of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry their lives could have been preserved to a green old age. Soots, and $1 a bottle; large bottles much the cheaper.

Consumptivel Take Notice.—Every moment of delay makes your cure more hopeless, and much depends on the judicious choice of a remedy. The amount of testimony in favor of Dr. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure for consumption, far exceeds all that can be brought to support the pretensions of any other medicine. See Dr. Schenck's Almanac, centaining the certificates of many persons of the highest respectability who have been restored to health, after being pronounced incurable by physicians of acknowledged ability. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup alone has cured many, as these evidences will show; but the cure is often promoted by the employment of two other remedies which Dr. Schenck provides for the purpose. These additional remedies are Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills. By the timely use of these medicines, according to directions, Dr. Schenck certifies that most any case of Consumption may be cured.

Dr. Schenck is professionally at his principal office, corner Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphis, every Monday, where all letters for advice must be addressed.
